1919 A legend was born

It all began nearly 100 years ago in a small, Midwest town in the United States, when an engineer named Herbert Johnston watched a baker mix bread dough with a heavy iron spoon and decided that there had to be an easier way. In 1908, he put his engineering skills to the test and developed what became the first commercial mixer, which was used as standard equipment in all US Navy ships.

Eleven years later, skilled Hobart engineers embarked on a new programme to develop a mixer for domestic use. When the wives of Hobart executives tested the new mixer, one remarked, "I don't care what you call it, it's the best kitchen aid I've ever had." From that day on, this brand name has been the KitchenAid® trademark.

On the eve of World War II, the US-acclaimed designer Egmont Arens designed a stylish new model. All three of his mixers remain virtually unchanged today, appearing in many museums and winning awards for their outstanding design.

KitchenAid®

As of 1994, a wide pallet of attractive, bold colours was introduced for the portable KitchenAid® appliances, enabling cooks to choose from an unrivalled colour selection to match their kitchen perfectly. KitchenAid® stand mixers are far more than just a mixer : they can be converted to anything from a pasta maker to a sausage stuffer or a citrus juicer using an impressive array of optional attachments. They're in a class of their own.

Over the years, the product range has been expanded to meet the demanding needs of professional cooks, with an extensive range of premium appliances starting with the Artisan® Stand Mixer, launched in 2002.

This Artisan® Stand Mixer was the first appliance in a growing Artisan™ Range, complemented by the introduction of the 2- and 4- slice toasters (in 2003), the espresso maker and burr grinder (in 2004), the food processor (in 2005) and the Artisan™ blender (in 2007). Everything a cook could possibly need for entertaining and impressing family and friends with delicious and inspired creations.

In short, KitchenAid® appliances are not only designed to meet your culinary needs in terms of professionalism and performance, but they will make you the envy of your friends with their eye-catching designs and stunning good looks.

Today, the legacy of quality lives on not only in the Artisan® stand mixer, but in the full line of kitchen appliances sold across the world !
